ON THE LABOR OF THE COSMIC BEES

"Now one more thing before we finish this chapter. Your comets run into the hundreds of thousands and are the Generators and Sowers of cosmic pollen, breaking down and creating and scattering new and virile energy throughout the vast Void. Despite their tremendous size most of them are of relatively light structure. Were they of heavy and solidified matter like the earth or other planets their speed would create such friction as to burn them up or explode them before they had travelled a thousand miles from their point of origin.

"The work of these cosmic bees is vast in scope, for they not only take planetary debris and convert it back into usable energy, but they rush so close to the suns as to sometimes pass right through the corona and steal great quantities of heat energy to supply other bodies whose position is too remote from any of the suns to get direct heating.

"While comets steal vast amounts of energy from the suns, the suns are constantly being supplied with new more or less solidified matter. Vast clouds of this, numbering into millions of miles, come pouring from a void far greater than the distance from the earth to your most distant star.. This matter is converted into radiant energy by the suns. The dark spots seen on your sun are the giant tubes through which the electrons of the smashed atoms are driven out by the force of the exploding nuclei. They are driven on out into space by the continual pressure of light. It is in these vast fields of matter that comets are formed, the building of them taking place by whirling lines of magnetism.

"The larger and denser the mass, the greater the pressure of light and sound upon it, and if there are no other bodies within sufficient radius to offer it an equal resistant force, it will break free of its birthplace and roar off to find its orbit among bodies that are strong enough to create a constant field of attraction for it. . . Yet no force is truly a constant. (Even) the action of light can be modified. A thing in itself is never a constant, but finds its constancy in its work. This too is true of man, who lives as long as he acts. However, neither man nor things can achieve complete inactivity on any plane of consciousness. The Cycle of Quiescence is no less a Cycle of Activity. . . And the immensity of space is the immensity of the Universal Mind, and the immensity of this latter is the immensity of the Self... "

WHAT IS BORDERLAND SCIENCE

- The Spectrum of Reality -

- by -

Harold S. W. Chibbett.

(In Round Robin for February 1951 we printed an article by B.S.R. Associate Edward S. Schultz under the same heading as above, with the sub-title "Its Nature and Implications". In the following article one of our London Associates, Mr. H.S.W. Chibbett, comments on the same subject).

In the August issue of Round Robin, the Editor referred to the spectrums of colour and sound, and suggested that by analogy there should be a spectrum of of touch also. Just as there are colours at either end of the spectrum which our eyes are unable to see, just as there are sounds pitched too high or too low for audibility; so, too, there may be substances which are untouchable. At one end of this spectrum of touch we have substances untouchable in the ordinary sense, such as gases, radiations, emanations of all kinds; but at the other we have hypothetical substances too dense to feel.

At first sight this seems fantastic. How can it be possible for something to be too dense, too solid to be tangible? One might surmise that when in contact with this super-density, the atoms of physical matter might 'flow round' the greater density as water flows around a rock. That is supposition. But one thing is certain; if such substance exists it is not only untouchable, but invisible, inaudible, and unsmellable. All its characteristics will be outside or beyond the spectra of this physical universe. It will have no effect on our senses at all, and judged by normal criteria it will have no reality.

It is just at that point, where fact fades off into seeming fantasy, that Borderland Science begins to come into its own. Any faculty or experience which seems to contain an element of fantasy is a matter for investigation by the occult-scientist. Take a few at random; clairvoyance, clairaudience, dowsing, crystal gazing, telepathy, psychometry, materialization, apports: all these possess for most people an element of the fantastic or 'miraculous'. All, with the possible exception of telepathy, are regarded with suspicion by 'orthodox' science. But all of them come within the field of study of the Borderland investigator. It is true that he has to face up to scepticism and intolerance, but as a pioneer he expects this. He remembers that the 'impossible' of one generation is often the fait accompli of the next. The "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" and "Round the World in Eighty Days" of Jules Verne fiction have long been surpassed by the actual achievements of our own time. It would be easy to list many similar illustrations. We know now that these imaginative writers were to some extent prophets of future fact. I have a lurking suspicion that these efforts of the constructive imagination are a form of prophetic clairvoyance, and in their highest form capable of predicting the future with remarkable accuracy - at least with respect to the broader lines of development. Imagination may also be a psychic faculty for the exploration of other realms of existence.

Let us suppose that this vagueness and elusiveness which enshrouds Borderland subjects, is merely an indication that our borderland is at the beginning and end of a different kind of spectrum - the spectrum of Reality. In the center of the scale are 'solid' and 'substantial' facts; the things which can be weighed and measured. Toward either end are realities not quite so definite, and including values of all kinds, abstract ideas, memories, and imponderables generally. Beyond these will lie Non-Reality so far as the evidence of the five senses is concerned. Most people say in effect, 'if something isn't real it must be imaginary.' They assume that anyone who confuses reality with imagination is an escapist and a dreamer of impossibilities.

Yet as has already been suggested, the imagination, far from being insubstantial, is the prototype of all invention. Anything made or shaped must first have existed as a concept or matrix in the mind of its creator. And this concept is in a sense far more 'real' than its objective form.

A better term for this greater reality might be actuality - leaving reality to apply to anything apprehended by the human senses. Actuality would correspond with the noumenal or causative principles lying back of phenomena.

It is well known that the spectra of light and sound are very limited in range, and that those beyond the reach of our senses can be detected, in part, by instruments. These instruments serve as extensions of our sight and hearing. By analogy we can assume that our Reality Spectrum is only a small portion of a greater Actuality. There is evidence that some human beings have extended perceptive powers which operate like the instruments referred to. Clairvoyance, for example, operates over long distances and often includes a high degree of magnification. Yet the power has its peculiar features. An object seen clairvoyantly will often (for example) appear without any background at all. Clairaudience not only equals the acuity of animal hearing, but brings in (e.g.) voices and music when the source of them is unknown or very far distant.

As the range of perception is extended, the fresh spectra of reality become apparent. It is with these new regions of reality that the occult scientist or borderland scientist is concerned. If he can rationalize them, make them credible to the layman, show that they open new and wonderful realms of existence, then he will have gone far toward removing the idea that death is the end of all - thereby performing a great service for humanity. *

Note Concerning the Foregoing Article

Concerning
"super-densities"
etc. Para.1 & 2

For the information of those who think that the Ether is some kind of mystical notion of Oriental metaphysics, or else an outmoded scientific concept, it may be worth while to quote the following passages from Eddington (Nature of the Physical World; p. 30 ff):

Velocity through the Aether: The theory of relativity is evidently bound up with the impossibility of detecting absolute velocity... Motion with respect to the aether or to any universally significant frame would be called absolute. No aethereal frame has been found. "Velocity through the Aether" is as meaningless as "north-east from the north pole."

This does not mean that the aether is abolished. We need an ether. The physical world is not to be analyzed into isolated particles of matter or electricity with featureless interspace. We have to attribute as much character to the interspace as to the particles, and in present-day physics quite an army of symbols is required to describe what is going on in the interspace. We postulate aether to bear the characters of the interspace as we postulate matter or electricity to bear the characters of the particles.

In the last century it was widely believed that aether was a kind of matter, having properties such as mass, rigidity, motion, like ordinary matter... I think this ceased to be the orthodox view some years before the advent of the relativity theory. Logically it was abandoned by the numerous 19th century investigators who regarded matter as vortices, knots, squirts etc. in the aether; for clearly they could not have supposed that aether consisted of vortices in the aether. But it may not be safe to assume that the authorities in question were logical.

Nowadays it is agreed that aether is not a kind of matter. Being non-material, its properties are sui generis. We must determine them by experiment, and the experimental conclusions can be accepted without surprise or misgiving. Characters such as mass and rigidity will naturally be absent in aether; but the aether will have new and definite characters of its own. In a material ocean we can say that a particular particle of water which was here a few moments ago is now over there; there is no corresponding assertion that can be made about the aether. If you have been thinking of the aether in a way which takes for granted the property of permanent identification of its particles, you must revise your conception in accordance with modern evidence.. We cannot find our velocity thru the aether; we cannot say whether the aether now in this room is flowing out thru the north wall or the south wall... But the aether itself is as much to the fore as it ever was, in our present scheme of the world ...

Concerning super-densities, con.

"Repetition is the mother of learning" ("repetitio mater" etc.) - the old Latin phrase is a good one, or was in the old days when it could be translated into terms of birch rods for brats; but what good is repetitio with the contemporary brat-minded adult-in-years, unless it concerns his dinner, his bank account, his light-o'-loves or heavy sugar, or some most imminent and obvious menace to his life, liberty and pursuit of sappiness generally? The question is merely rhetorical. But for four years past we have been offering, in booklets, bulletins, publications of various kinds, an explanation (limited but pregnant) of the flying discs and many related phenomena. This explanation is scientifically sound in principle, acceptable to meta-physics and the most ancient knowledge in the world. It is not religious or faddist or cultist, and it "saves" all the diversified data instead of guessing about isolated instances. We have read carefully every alleged alternative explanation, and have not yet found one which deserves even respectful consideration.

These stupidities began with illusions, delusions, hallucinations, went on to lies and elaborate fakes, included stars and planets (Venus particularly), meteors and asteroids (still much in favor), clouds and condors, even fireflies (so help me!), enemy aircraft, guided missiles, secret weapons (still pap for the millions); the latest achievement is balloons, or parts of balloons, or ballooney for Ballooonatics. Every * fool who has seen a june bug, or a searchlight on a cloud, or reflections from the wing of a plane has popped into hour-long popularity with a final and conclusive "explanation" of everything. Except, of course, ANA, or Army, Navy & Air trinitarians, who are fed up with mysterious air-antics over their routes and bases, but can find nothing to say except that they aint there and don't happen. - But, there's no excuse for ignorance; Windy Walter told us all about them, long time ago! He said all Discs and their progeny came from Russiar, and 'anybody who says they don't is a liar'. L'Editeur heard that with his own earlets. And then, of course, there are people who think Angels or Demons of the Air responsible for the show-off, or else refer only to signs and wonders in heaven, the Last Days and the Vials of the Seven Angels. And there be others who refer all to tricky elementals and poltergeists - (who have somehow made most wonderful advances in science, far beyond any poltergeister hitherto reported). That's acrobatics for you! But still, these simple souls in a way are so far ahead of the Ballooonatic type, Solomon to Simple Simon gives no idea of the contrast. But it

This is to announce that we are starting a "Word-Wordle" department (wordle = world). Send in your contributions. At the moment we offer "Serp" for "seance-room pest." would be easy to fill this page with itemizing the "explanations" - of phenomena which "do not exist"; explanations which contradict themselves and each other, explanations which account, maybe, for one instance or two, then bracket a thousand other and different cases along with them. "Explanations" which any semi-intelligent school boy should feel insulted by --

What, in the Name of the Pantheons of Lunacy, is the matter with people? Not merely busy workaday folk, who have every reason for being ignorant of the facts and non-critical in judgment - but with our so-called intellectuals, intelligentsia, scientists, and professors of this-'n-that? There are a few, of course, who know what is happening in the skies of our planet; a few others who have made some very shrewd guesses. Who dares to print these facts? There are three or four books on the market, three more in preparation (we are told); two-three films also, several magazine articles. So far as our information goes, not one of these advances what we believe to be the correct interpretation, none of them is adequate to the data, none goes along well with the others. Plundering, of course; money is marbles and let's play keeps! Now, we are not assuming that the Etheric explanation is valid or gains weight or ought to gain it, because of our advocacy. It deserves immediate and careful attention because of its merits, its sane and scientific background, its philosophic worth, its adequacy in integrating every phase of these remarkable phenomena. This is not something dreamed up by amateur scientists or by BSR investigators; it is ancient knowledge hand in hand with modern scientific ideas. It is this inability, or dogmatic refusal to consider the obvious, which is profoundly disturbing.

We have space only to resume a single point. First reread the quotation from Eddington, then consider the following: "The matter of our world is a rarefaction... Suppose an atom to be enlarged with all its distances kept in proportion, so that the orbit of the electron has a diameter equal to that of the earth about the sun. Then the diameter of the electron itself will be only about 2000 miles, and the diameter of the nucleus as about two miles. We have then a central mass two miles thick, and another object 2000 miles thick at a distance of some 92 million miles... Plenty of room inside this system! And room is space, and space is not nothing; it is identifiable with the ether(s). And ether is "matter" of extreme density, too dense to be seen or felt, which flows thru our matter as wind or water thru a screen with meshes a mile wide. In this dense matter, inside the system of any atom or congregation of atoms of our world, there may be (and are) other worlds, and worlds within these also - world without end!

No further scientific advance of basic importance is possible (we are told and we believe) unless or until science is able to accept and understand the existence and nature of the ethers with their almost incredible densities, and the origin of our plane from them, and at least the possibility that they may teem with life, with civilizations and cultures far superior to our own.

Fly, then, Ka-re-tas, God-man-in-flight! Fly, Lokas, fly. Some time, perhaps, the dwellers in the darkness of Terra will lift faces of welcome, hands of salutation to your coming.

REBIRTH OF MYSTICISM

(A correspondent sends us the following, as a clip "from a London newspaper".)

Something is going on under the surface of world affairs almost undetected by news detectors. It may be the greatest story of our time. At present it is being called the re-birth of mysticism. To call it a religious revival, observers say, would be to confuse it with such highly organized movements as Moral Rearmament or the newer Christian Statesmanship groups.

From the scientific standpoint, it has been described as a new phase in the evolution of Man. If all the signs are correctly reported and rightly understood, they say, it means that Man is undergoing a spiritual revolution.

For want of more precise terms, they describe it as 'Man turning away from hypothetical matter to universal reality', or to put it in theological terms- Man turning from his visible world to God. The manifestations completely baffle the professional statesmen and leaders who are dimly aware of its potentialities. They try to link it with definable and well-publicized political or religious movements. Some guess that it is related to the Holy Year of 1950.

The manifestations are reported in quiet bits of information from many countries indicating that 'Men are thinking more than talking' but occasionally getting together in quiet places to discuss ideas which they are almost afraid to mention.

There are no regular communications from group to group, but each seems to be somehow aware that it is not working alone. According to some well-pleased informants, these manifestations are going on inside Russia right under the eyes and ears of the MVD (secret police) but in such an innocent manner as to elude investigations. Russian Communist leaders are aware of something going on which both baffles and enrages them. They are too smart to attack it openly and brutally as Stalin did in crushing Trotskyism. There is something deeper than the dialectics of Marxian doctrine. This goes to the root of Russian character. It cannot be purged. What frustrates the Kremlin in handling this problem is the fact that Russians are by nature mystics. Many of them first turned to Communism because of its mystical jargon, which appeared to offer something better than sheer materialism, and more realistic than Orthodox theology. As one informant explains - they are now finding that the Marxian mysticism is just as unsatisfying as their former beliefs and theories.

One informant says the Communist Overlords are afraid to try to root out the new mysticism lest they destroy the whole system. Just as interesting situations are developing in other parts of the world - including America - which is by no means immune to mysticism.

Comment on

"THE REBIRTH OF MYSTICISM"

(By permission, from the correspondence of B.S.R. Associate

JOHN A. HILLIARD

Dear M.L.

I have your last Transcript at hand and was surprised at the "Rebirth of Mysticism" article. It was something which I had believed so little known as to evade notice for a long time to come.

I have on several occasions, in conversation with people, sometimes strangers who did not know my interests, observed in them an awareness of that 'more' of consciousness which is often referred to as the 'inner plane', 'reality', or 'truth', but which for me is simply Spiritual Consciousness.

In a sense the Immortal Self reaches down into this physical plane. A babe is born, a life is lived (famous or otherwise), a death ensues, and the Immortal withdraws. This process is repeated many times until the apexes of the two symbolic triangles come very near to coinciding in the same point. We look at this as if there were two parts of a whole gradually growing toward each other until they unite, and the dual parts become forever a unit.

This physical self is the least part, a reflected image, a means of ingress into this plane. Since this plane and the plane above are also a wholeness, our awareness, now bipartite, becomes itself a whole upon the at-one-ment of the spiritual and material parts.

There are being born into life now, a great number of people who are intuitively aware of the Wholeness of their being. Mystics, we call them - but they are more than that. Not so much 'mysticism' as an extra-mental Power usually called Intuition. They know the truth that is the structure of reality. Naturally, they baffle the Learned Elders, because they recognize all too easily the 'stage sets', the 'Hollywood settings' of the marvelous and complex theories which these latter have devised concerning this-and-that. Truth is simple, always.*

Rather than mysticism, I would call it an evolutionary step forward in the mental-spiritual direction. To call it mysticism is to imply that this was less prevalent in former times than now. But the contrary was true, especially during those periods when education was limited to the very few and was less materialistic than it is today. Hence the notion of a 'rebirth of mysticism'. But mysticism never produced much outside of religious sentiments and Swedenborgian treatises on two-face Angels. This which is coming into mani - festation is a mental faculty which enables the possessor to penetrate through useless verbiage to the kernel of truth - to actually discern the spiritual moreness of things. In a little while you will see these people compel the misleaders of humanity to admit their lies or get off the earth. This new faculty, we shall see, is supremely practical - whereas the older mysticism had nothing to do with the 'loaf of bread and jug of wine', and only vaguely with 'thou.'

The old mystics were super-self-centered; the new are world-centered - there's a great difference. It makes me happy to see these things coming to pass, so to speak. There is a very dark and wicked side to the present world picture, and the vision of it has driven more than one to suicide. But there lies beyond this evil cloud a fair day of peace, world-wide and beyond measure.

J.A.H.

* I think Associate Hilliard would agree, that simplicity is a relative word. A thing becomes 'simple' to us when we think we understand it. To 'understand' means to relate it to other things or 'laws' or 'principles'. To move one's finger tip or hear the ticking of the clock, is supremely 'simple' to the non-reflective. Comes the scientist-philosopher, and the simplicity becomes a cosmic mystery. Then, as new laws and relationships unfold, this vast complexity again tends to simplify, as the enlarged 'explanations' appear. Neither simplicity nor complexity are qualities of things, or permanent or transitory, but lie in the mind of the observer and reflect the degree of his personal unfoldment.

In this time when fear rides the world and nearly every prediction is an echo of it, we find quietude and strength in the words of our Associate. Neither contemporary religionism nor speculative science (to my mind) has any reasoned and substantial hope to offer mankind, but rather a vision of chaos, each in its own way. But intuitive insight is, so to speak, the higher arc of knowledge. It exists, it builds on facts but penetrates behind and beyond them, and if as Associate Hilliard believes (and the writer of the "Rebirth" article) it is fast appearing as a "mental faculty" and an "evolutionary step" - its vision of the future may be the one thing to which Wisdom can cling fast. At the least it is unstained by the bigotry of religionism and the pessimism of 'scientific' forecasts, and has claims to validity which neither of these possess.

EXCERPTS FROM THE SEANCES

Mark Probert, Medium

1-28-51 2-8-51
8:30 pm.

CONTROL: Professor Alfred Luntz:

a) (Question from sitter concerning the "Anti-Christ"); Yes, the Anti-Christ is supposed to be a person; I believe it was said he would come out of the desert. There is such a one supposedly in existence and . . . one would presume he was either in league with the devil or with God himself (on account of the power attributed to him)*. But he is neither; he is merely a man who has learned how to master the elements, as Jesus the Christ did. The Most Honorable Count St. Germaine did the same thing. And I suppose you have heard of a man named Crowley, there was another man who had mastered life. He could appear young or old, with a handsome or a hideous face. . . The "Antichrist" means merely 'against good'. There are many so-called black magicians, and they are feared by those who do not understand that by using the same power, but called White Magic, they could reduce that one to nothing. . .

b) "Some of you have heard the term 'crossing the Abyss' Do you know what it means? Getting beyond mortal man's ideas of good and evil; the losing completely of any thought of difference between the two. One like this could as easily murder as do some good and beautiful deed. Such a one is completely without compassion - but to be so is to be very lost, very hopeless. Man has to have compassion or he would turn the world into a bloody jungle far worse than it is now.

CONTROL: Ramon Natalli (16th c. astronomer):

c) (Question: Natalli, did you hear me reading this article which announces that certain scientists are coming to the conclusion that cosmic rays originate in the sun - just as you told us they did, years ago?)

d) "Yes, but it is foolish to say 'I told you so'. The thing which is true will eventually come through. . . There have been many disturbances on the various bodies in what you call the sky, in recent years, and these are felt throughout the entire galaxy in which your world is but one very small dot. And if your earth is a dot, think how much less than a dot you must be. Yet without you, all the rest of it would not exist.

(A boy: Question about the Planet Suite of Gustave Holst).

e) "All planets are built by certain octaves - certain sounds. The entire universe was created by tones. Your bible says, 'the Lord said, let there be light.' Tones! Harmonics created them and the tones created words. . . There is no inharmony except what the human mind believes in. But I wanted only to tell you that great electrical and wind storms and quakes (such as other planets have experienced) will continue. Yes, Vesuvius will become active and you will have volcanoes in various parts of the world, and also quakes that may be very serious here.

f) (Question about Las Vegas atom-bomb tests): "They have created effects within a radius of several hundred miles . . . No, they have not affected the ionized belt too much . . . I think I did not say the H bomb would dry up all water; I said all the water in the vicinity .. No, an underground refuge is better than the mountains for the radiations go up. . . Your city is up to 15 - 20% radioactive from those explosions in Nevada. The atmosphere is contaminated but not enough to be dangerous to life .

g) (Question): "The planets causing present disturbances on earth are Mars and Venus - and the great star Wolf.

h) (Q., Boy: What is the form of the disturbance? etc.) " Yes, you might call it a chain reaction in general nature ... I must go now; I am very tired.

CONTROL: Yada di Shi'ite. (1-4-51: 8:00 pm): ... "We do not come to criticize but to make clear the picture as it is, without pretense. Do you think that wars in your world do not affect us over here. They do - because you are sending thousands upon thousands over here who are utterly unprepared, ignorant of life, and it is a heart-breaking thing. Often they do not even know they are out of the physical body - and many do not want ot be out of it, and they make scenes that are beyond description.

j) Do you think a Chinese, a Russian, a German, an Englishman, an American are any different just because they were born into a certain environment? They are all the same, all of God. . . . The time may come when you will have to take part in the fighting . . but try never to kill in hate; try to do what you must with detachment; go thru the act without thinking of it. The act will be what you make it. -- Now, will you please read what you have in your hand?)

k) (HPF reads part of an article on theory advanced by Dr. E.J. Workman and Dr. V.J. Schaefer, that volcanic dust seeded clouds over the entire world, producing precipitation and creating the Ice Age. 'Unusual volcanic activity prior to the ice age may have filled the atmosphere with particles, and as in over-seeding with silver iodide, little rain fell and a blanket of ice particles was interposed between the sun and the earth ... halting the normal transfer of heat between the equator and the Poles. The upshot of these and other factors would have been the formation of innumerable glaciers in the north and south.'))

l) "No, no - this great blanket of ice around the earth turned it into a tropical condition. It did not close out all of the sun's heat by any means, but it did keep out the terrific storms that rent the earth before the first Ice Age. Then this great blanket gave way and descended upon the earth. But before it reached the earth it sent out such a terrific charge of cold that it froze everything. That glaciers broke away from the Polar regions and descended - no, that isn't so... You have had discoveries of animals frozen with grass still in their stomachs.

m) The atmosphere was full of dust particles from the grinding of the rocks together ... Then came great rain storms; the earth was racked from end to end by rains such as you have not the faintest idea of. Waves the size of mountains swept the earth, and darkness was upon the earth for years and years. When the rains stopped, the sun took up great quantities of water into the atmosphere, for there was then no ionized belt until after the first Ice Age.

n) (Question concerning Mt. Shasta): "In long past times the earth had an island continent called Atlantis, and also Lemuria. When Lemuria went down, was destroyed by fire and water, some of the Lemurians escaped. These were Teachers, human Masters still in the physical body - those who had tried to bring wisdom and love to the enslaved people. These Masters formed quite a large civilization in that mountain (Shasta). It is still peopled by descendants of these beings, who know many of the laws of life and can appear and disappear at will. They appear occasionally in certain cities to be of aid to those who deserve it. They come and go and are not suspected. If they were they would probably be set upon and called witches or devils.

o) These people who come from the old civilizations have hideaways in the body of the earth, because they know that man is still largely in the savage state . . .

p) Before I go, I must tell you - this war in Korea is not to end there - but you are to live day by day to the best of your ability .. until the war pulls you into its vortex. Do not anticipate it. You do not know whether you will live here tomorrow; you can only know the present moment. -- Do not forget laughter - it is food for the soul.

NOTES ON PRECEDING PARAGRAPHS:

Para. "a": Crowley: The reference of course is to Aleister Crowley, a singular genius, poet and occultist, associated with the founding of the Golden Dawn Order and with its later disruption. --- Para. "b": "the Abyss": In Esoteric Qabalism, the Abyss Paroketh separating the Three Supernals from the Sephiroth "below"; the invisible Sephirah Daath, where the type of consciousness changes. --- Para "c": "Yet without you" etc. All of the Inner Circle communicators appear to subscribe whole-heartedly to the "All-Consciousness School", according to which the whole of "Nature" is posited within the awareness of individual minds; the mind cannot appeal from itself, and no 'objective', 'external' and 'independent' existents can be affirmed. A spiritualistic or spiritistic pluralism.

Para. "g": "the great star Wolf." This reference to Wolf is probably connected with the recent assertion by Natalli, that the newly-found planetoid, which may pass within moon-distance of the earth, is actually a fragment (not a satellite) of Wolf - hence presumably a result of the "disturbances" on that star. This remarkable body ( designated as Wolf 457) has a mass 60 times that of our Sun, but is only about half the size of our moon, or some 3000 miles in diameter. This means that its density is 500 million times that of water (a diamond is only 3.55 times as dense as water), and one cubic inch of it would weigh about 9000 tons if transported to the surface of our earth. Anyone who thinks that we children of Terra live in a world of "dense" matter, instead of in the skimpiest of rarefactions, will do well to ponder on such data. The approaching planetoid, therefore (if it be 'approaching') is not to be regarded lightly merely on account of its small size. Maybe some of our mathematician Associates will tell us how many cubic feet or inches of it would outweigh the earth! ratio one inch to 9000 tons.

We are reminded also of a statement made several years ago by one of the seance communicators (Natali?) that the so-called Vortexes (Grants Pass, Santa Cruz, Ojai valley and other places) where the 'laws' of gravity and magnetism are strangely distorted, are probably caused by the existence of buried bits of matter of enormous density. If the statements of the Control are correct, we may have at hand a good near-example, or illustration, of how such fragments come to be buried in the earth's crust.

Even with a density or weight of 9000 tons to the cubic inch, the distance between the nuclei of the atoms of this substance would be between 10 and 100 times the diameter of the atom itself, and the incredible density of the others would 'flow' thru it like wind thru a mile-wide mesh. This for the benefit of those who think the concept of the otheric worlds and planes of being is 'unscientific.'!

Para. "j": "The act will be what you make it". That is, moral values, 'good' and 'evil' are human concepts, man-made ideas. Nature knows nothing of them. If you believe your act is 'wrong', then so it is - for you. If some one else believes it is 'right' and 'good', then so it is, for him. But how can it possess an absolute value? How can it be good or bad "in itself"? If millions of people agree that an act is 'bad', that does not affect the basic situation. In another age, a different culture, the consensus of opinion may run the other way. Historically, incest has been rated a sacred duty, torture, rapine and murder exalted as virtues even in the name of religion and under the aegis of the Prince of Peace. And "there's nothing either good or bad but thinking makes it so." There is no novelty in all this; we repeat it to clarify the stern phrase of the Yoda, and all of the Inner Circle agree with him. No novelty - but neither is it food for babes.

A word to the many anxious friends of Dr. Kappa: a few lines from him tells us he is slowly recovering his vision and a measure of physical strength, and he is firm in his purpose to make some kind of intelligible record of his experiences. The Control LaoTsu says, 'his aura has been seriously affected, shattered almost, by the rays or vibrations from the Ether Ship which approached him. There has been a draining away of the corticle (brain cortex?). It will take time for these vibrations to be absorbed. The temporary blindness is a nervous effect. We suggest that he use mantrams to free himself. These vibrations tend to shatter the physical - chemical body.' -- Occultists who can grasp this situation should find this comment very instructive.

M.L./

"I am no longer the same person . . . !"

These were the words of Dr. Kappa, whose remarkable experiences with the Etheric people have been partly detailed in the BSR TRANSCRIPTS.

"Everything, everyone seems (at such moments) barbaric and stupid. I am filled with loathing and disgust for that which formerly seemed excellent. A spade is a spade and a sinner is a so-and-so, not a "child of God". I am in touch with a focus of another kind of consciousness which is filled with profound disgust for the stupidity and vanity of earth...All this is new and foreign to my natural modes of thought and feeling..."

The similarity of this to the experiences described by the writer of the following letter is most striking. WHAT IS THE MEANING OF ALL THIS? WHO AND WHAT ARE THESE ENTITIES?

Editor, Round Robin:

The experiences related by Dr. Kappa interest me deeply, for they account for certain experiences which I've had myself, and which I haven't been able to understand.

Like Dr. Kappa, my own observations and experiences in life, my own metaphysical and occult studies, and my study of history, would naturally lead to a certain disillusionment, even a bitterness toward, and a disgust with, the human race, and that for many reasons; but at the very worst, none of it could account for spells I go through every so often, of feeling completely hostile toward it - as if I myself were not a member of the human race at all, but were of a different order of intelligence, entirely, hard, cold, and implacable, and with the very strong feeling that the human race is too unutterably stupid to be worth saving.

I've long been convinced that this is not just a mood, but is a tuning-in some way with a form of intelligence which really is alien to human life as we know it, and utterly scornful of its stupidities and "ways," and completely contemptuous of what it is pleased to call its "spirituality"!

When this "spell" is upon me, I don't feel like myself, at all, and I don't even look like myself. I can't describe it, but my whole expression changes, my eyes look different, and there is a brooding, somber, and sardonic expression that is quite impossible to describe, and completely non-human and powerful.

This is the more remarkable in that I ordinarily like people, and feel kindly and friendly toward them, gentle and compassionate, and very protective, and with a sincere desire to be of service, and to co-operate. Yet when that "spell" is upon me, everything I've ever been taught or have believed in, everything I've ever believed to be wonderful about the human race, looks absolutely futile and childish to me - trite beyond words. At the same time, I "see" or realize truths so shocking to my normally human mind, so terr-ifying, and so staggering in their implications to all that we hold dear, that I feel sickened to my very soul, and completely silenced, as if I could never speak again. It takes me quite a while then to throw off the horror of it all, and to get back to being my normally friendly and co-operative self.

As I've said, I've not understood this, nor have I dared mention it to anyone until now, feeling that no one could understand it, and even wondering at times if it might not be a form of insanity I'd best keep quiet about! Yet almost every reaction Dr. Kappa mentions is one that I've experienced myself on occasion, and I understand just what he is talking about, if not to the same degree; and know, too, that such reactions and experiences are altogether different from those normally experienced by sensitive natures, even by "psychic", or highly "spiritual" natures.

There is never any question in any of this of my losing my own consciousness, or of being "possessed." It is, rather, becoming aware of what another and alien intelligence is thinking and feeling, and realizing our stupidity in even thinking that we human beings have the highest form of intelligence - the only really developed form of intelligence - in the universe!

Just why I, personally, have had this experience on many occasions, I don't know. I can't see that it leads to anything in particular - unless it is a form of being conditioned to expecting just about anything and being surprised at nothing! And perhaps that in itself is important and may prove to be of future usefulness. Certainly, while all the information sent to me from headquarters interests me deeply, none of it surprises me. I've suspected the existence of such facts as are revealed for a long, long time; and I must say, on second thought, that to be conditioned for the acceptance of such things and for whatever might happen in the future, is probably the most important thing that could happen to anyone at this time.

At any rate, I mention this purely for what it may be worth.

Much is going on all around us that is, I'm afraid, going to stagger many, and perhaps topple many minds, when it all comes out into the open.

World conditions don't look very good to me, either!

The mental condition described in this letter, and also reported by Dr. Kappa, contains profound implications, and one has small patience with the pseudo-occult smartness which dismisses it as an "overshadowing by a Master". Dr. Kappa himself is thoroughly familiar with that cliché and understands the experience it refers to. And I cannot see how any occultist with more than a verbal smattering of 'clandestine things' can fail to recognize, that we have here a serious potential menace - in this Nietzschean superman complex, so to call it. I presented this matter to the Control Yada di Shi'ite, who then withdrew, saying that he preferred to leave it to the Maharaja Natcha, Trimaliki, (a Prince of India educated at Oxford, long a communicator through the trance mediumship of Mark Probert). The Maharajah replied at some length and a verbatim report will be available later, but my own understanding of the most important features is as follows:

What I have called (not too happily) the superman complex, or attitude - an icy intellectualism, brutally realistic, devoid of human sympathy and love, without emotion save aversion and disgust with the endless stupidity and viciousness of our earth-plane - this state of consciousness is a natural (and inevitable?) phase of psychic 'unfoldment' or 'development' or 'evolution', in some natures --

This phase is NOT the result of any impact or deliberate operation on the mind, by 'outside' forces or Entities. The Etherians have not hypnotized Dr. Kappa or R.E.B. into this intolerant and contemptuous God-state. No evil spell has been cast upon them - nevertheless --

This mental and 'psychical' condition reproduces with mirror-like fidelity the mentality of at least some of the peoples whom we call Etherians. It is inevitable that this fact should result in a degree of rapport.

The case of R.E.B. was not discussed separately, but with regard to Dr. Kappa the Maharajah commented: that the Etheric visitants had observed him during the years of his residence in India and China and were well aware of his exceptional powers and knowledge, and that in his (Natcha's) opinion they were concerned and displeased over Dr. K's determination to reveal his knowledge of life on the Etheric planes - the organization, ideas and culture of the Etheric people. The Rajah believed that the Etherians considered such revelations, not as absolutely taboo, but as premature at this time. That the appearance of the huge ether-ship over Dr. K's residence, with the outpouring of (what we call) ultrasonic rays or vibrations, was NOT accidental. That Dr. K is in serious need of help - which the Astral people of the Rajah's world can give only in limited measure.

The Rajah also stated, that "attack" or invasion of this kind, upon earthplane people, was almost always possible (but in the nature of things very rare); and that it could be resisted successfully provided the person concerned had sufficient occult knowledge and some degree of 'development' (mantrams, ritual, meditation, Guides).

I am frequently in receipt of letters urging us NOT to withhold or disguise information of the type given above; nevertheless this article is somewhat experimental, and all comments from our Associates will receive very close attention and consideration.

THINKING AND DESTINY -- FIRST IMPRESSIONS

by

B. F. Greenlee

Possibly, the key-note to this enormous book, which in size and complexity ranks with Blavatsky's The Secret Doctrine, can be found in the preface where Mr. Percival states, "in 1893 I became an ardent member of the Theosophical Society, but later on dropped out." The thread of theosophy runs through-out Thinking and Destiny.

When I had finished my first reading of this book, my reaction to it, as a whole, was one of despair; despair because if the book is true, for over 1,000,000 years I have been incarnated and reincarnated in the flesh time after time and probably will continue to reincarnate another million years. We do not reincarnate (says the author) to gain experience; all of us now living have had every possible experience as both man and woman in every station of life. We are, as individuals, much more than we think we are. We are triune beings divided into The Thinker, The Knower, and The Doer. The Thinker and The Knower reside in the realm of Permanence (Paradise) and never reincarnate. Only the Doer portion, and that but 1/12 at a time, reincarnates. No human body as at present constituted can possibly contain all of the Doer portion at one time, let alone the Thinker and the Knower. By controlling our thoughts and giving up sex we can eventually evolve a type of body which can contain all 12 portions of the Doer as well as the Thinker and the Knower. We will then be consciously immortal, able to live on any of the four planes of being and capable of doing anything but wrong.

While not denying the possibility of communicating with the dead, Mr. Percival says that spiritism is a sign of decadence of a people. Attempts to communicate with the dead can be harmful to them, and possibly to the living also. This is a typical theosophical reaction to spiritualism. In the "Mahatma Letters to A. P. Sinnet," Koot Hoomi says, "Spiritualism is the greatest superstition of the present age."

Possibly, this book's greatest contribution to the field of illuminism is its clear and able exposition of thought and thinking, and their effects upon the destiny of the doer. Let me quote from page 120.

"A thought is a being, conceived by thinking, with a purpose and a plan. It is like an invisible blue-print - to be exteriorized as an act or an object. The exteriorized action is physical destiny..... One does not murder or steal or commit any dishonest notion without having thought of murder, or planned to steal or harbored dishonest thoughts. One who thinks upon murder, theft or lust will find a way to put his thoughts into deeds. If of too cowardly a nature to do this he will become a prey to others' thoughts, or to invisible inimical influences, which may, even against his wish, possess him at some critical time, and urge him to perform the kind of act he thought of as desirable and revolved in his brain, yet was too timid to execute."

Whether put into action or not, our thoughts are concrete things and must be balanced either in this life or some future life.

Those interested in the 'Shaver Mystery' will find in this book confirmation of the truth of some of Mr. Shaver's writings.

Mr. Percival very forcibly brings out the horribly depraved condition of the average human being of this age. Even so, this is not the worst age in which we have lived. But it lacks much of being its best. Some of the ages in which we have lived have been virtual paradises. We have no memory of any of our past lives, as after passing through hell and heaven after death our memory of any past lives is destroyed.

A summation of some of the thoughts in this book. This is the only inhabited world. The earth extends to the farthest star. The sun, moon, and stars are not what they seem to be. The interior of the earth is inhabited. Sylphs, gnomes, and undines (He does not use this nomenclature) are actual beings. Incubi and succubi have actual existence and do cohabit with human beings, which, he says, is one of the most harmful things a person can do. The earth's surface and all life upon it has been destroyed many times. Repopulation has then taken place from life from the interior which was not destroyed. This destruction was caused by the collective evil thoughts of the people. Vermin are embodied thoughts of the living. All animals are embodied thoughts of the dead.

All of the gods had an actual existence and were created by the thoughts of their worshipers. While able to reward or punish their worshipers, they have no intelligence of their own, and die when their last worshiper leaves the earth plane. The greatest thing in the universe is Consciousness. (also said by Lao-Tse at a Mark P. seance.) The purpose of the universe is to evolve substance into Consciousness. An apparent contradiction as he says elsewhere that we, being immortal never had a beginning. We have always existed. Neither time nor space exists in the Realm of Permanence.

While (like most people probably) I cannot accept Thinking and Destiny "100 percent", it still seems to me the most important book since Oahspe, in the illuminist field.

Thinking and Destiny: by Harold W. Percival; Word Pub. Co., 52 W. 42nd St. New York 18, N.Y. 1014 pages; $5.20 postpaid.

Under the heading, "Results from the Koch Treatment", Defender Magazine for February, 1951, prints "a condensation of a scientific paper read by Dr. Julian F. Baldor, Tampa, Florida, before the 1950 Annual Convention of the Christian Medical Research League, at Detroit, Michigan. Photographic evidence was presented in support of each case discussed."

Dr. Baldor began by describing Dr. Koch's discovery as " the most outstanding therapeutical achievement of our generation. He continues by referring to the special knowledge and skill demanded of the physician in using the Koch treatment - and that "allergy factors and manifestations comprise 75 to 80 percent of the underlying causes of pathological conditions". He then enumerates a series "of outstanding recoveries from diverse diseases, brought about by the use of the Koch therapy. These include:

MR. H.A.B. Skin cancer shown by biopsy, malignant skin epithelioma, grade III. Had surgery and local deep X-ray radiation up to the limit of application. Administration of glyoxylyde and complete recovery in about four months. (Age of patient, 67). Remains well since '47.

Mrs. J.C. Age 72. Basal epithelioma grade III, on face. Extensive surgery and deep X-ray. Single injection of benzoquinone, Jan. '48. Complete recovery, no recurrence.

Mr. J.H. Age 19. Glandular disorders, "Frolich Syndrome". Ill for five years, with multiple medical treatments without improvement. One injection of glyoxylyde; glandular system restored to normal, no relapse.

Mr. D.T. age 18. Severe burns, local infection; penicillin and burn ointment treatment ineffective. A vegetable compound containing glyoxylyde proved highly successful; as in several other cases of third degree burns.

Mr. J.L.D. age 77. Gangrene of right leg and being prepared for amputation. Glyoxylyde gave immediate relief. This was a case of Berger's disease, considered incurable by the medical profession. Cure effected in three months; no relapse.

"VOICE" MAGAZINE

Ralph M. Holland,
Editor: Jan. '51

"The most important thing with which the "Voice" has been associated in 1950 is, in my opinion, the Koch treatment. To the best of my ability I have tried to expose the shameful role played by "Dr" Morris Fishbein's A.M.A. in this matter and to spread the facts as widely as possible. The "Voice" is only one of the small group that was in the fight in the early part of 1950, and I must pause to give credit to the BSRA "Round Robin" from which we first learned of the matter. The past year has seen the number of doctors using the Koch treatment increase from 1500 to about 5000, and the saving of the lives of thousands of human beings condemned to lingering death by the forces of entrenched greed in the drug and medical professions.

Our Limitations . . .

Once again, and on account of occasional letters we receive, it seems advisable to say that Round Robin is NOT concerned with the race, religion, or politics of the Defender Magazine, or the American Christian Medical League (Lutheran Research Society), or of Dr. William Frederick Koch, or with pro- or antisemitism - being unable to see just what relation, if any, such issues have to do with the epochal discovery of the Koch Glyoxy- lide and its almost miraculous curative values. We shall continue to speak our piece about the rascality of the American Medical Association, but this is a horse of another (and very dirty) color. And the RR editor does not think these other matters unimportant (whatever else he may think about them), but simply that the discussion of them does not belong in any Borderland Science Research publication. The Defender Magazine at least has the courage to keep up the fight for the Koch treatment year after year - something which no other printed publication has done. And in another field, it has had the sanity and good sense to accept the so-called flying discs as being factual and genuine phenomena - an almost unique distinction - though we cannot share its somewhat religionistic approach to this subject.

Also, an Associate in New Mexico rebukes the RR Editor in no uncertain terms, for not giving more publicity to the PROPHECIES of Edna Thompson. The full title of this document is PROPHECY FOR THE YEARS 1950 to 2000: WRITTEN THROUGH "EXTRA SENSORY PERCEPTION" AND BY WHAT MAY BE TERMED BY SOME, AS UNDER PARTIAL HYPNOSIS. By Edna Thompson, Freeport, Ill. 1948. It consists of about 10 mimeo. pages, 8½ x 11", and is written in long rhymed lines- e.g.

The picture houses will be filled, the cars will be careening
To pleasure haunts on winter night, when first there comes the
And veiling of the noisy bombs ..... (screaming

The Prophecy is surprisingly definite at times, as to dates and localities. The author informs us that she had never before written verse and had no feeling of composing the lines herself. The whole 'came thru' in about two hours by automatic script, and is said to be communicated by a 'Guide' who in turn received it 'thru the vibration of numbers as taught on the astral' Mrs. Thompson is an editor, lecturer and publisher and is at present a resident of Portland, Oregon. - Information Publications Ltd. Freeport, Ill., for the PROPHECIES. $2.00.

GOBLIN MARKET - THE PARADE OF THE FANTASTIC:

Two mysterious missiles seen in Korean war - struck the water with terrific impact. Clear weather, no aircraft seen or reported by radar (Naval Aviation News, official).

Strange object over Alamogordo, N.M. Hovering, then 3 brilliant flashes ( Air Force officers report).

Fender paint on 500 cars blistered (Vancouver, B.C.).

"Saucer" with "tail fins" over Mt. Kilimajaro, Africa. Seen by crew and all passengers of air liner Feb. 19. Photographed.

Mysterious "Red" jet pulls away from a F-36 Saber, the USAF fastest plane, over Korea.

"Sun Spot Blasts" of unprecedented duration, with radiations 100 times more intense than those usually emitted. Reports from Tokyo.

Fifteen geysers, mud and boiling water, break out on a 25-acre area in Surprise Valley, Calif. (March 3, '51).

Headlight of a "phantom automobile" near Suffolk, Va. ( RR Editor saw almost exactly the same phenomenon 20 years ago - two fiery red "headlights" racing over terrain covered with rock, brush and cactus, about midnight, Malakia, on Colorado desert. Both this and the Suffolk light have been seen many times for years past).

George De La Warr, mechanical engineer, FRSA, Oxford, Eng., claims to have photographed a past event - his own wedding in 1928; thinks it will eventually be possible to photograph many or any past events. Occultists will agree, meanwhile Professor A.M. Low says "seems to be interesting". Bravo! Also, tut-tut!

Record Number of Quakes in 1950: 796 "significant" 'quakes (Harvard Seismograph Station). Himalayas, Tonga Islands, New Hebrides, Argentina, North Polar region ("very unusual"); quakeiest year since 1906. Leeward Islands, St. Kitts, Antigua, Montserrat badly shaken by long series of shocks, since Christmas 1950.

Microfilm copies of "every important government document" are being prepared, and storage places readied, "in small towns all over the interior of America".

"Four more books, seven magazines articles, two films are in preparation, dealing with flying saucers" according to Walter Winchell. Why? Since the "saucers" don't exist, or else are plastic balloons according to the AF, WHY the publicity?

'Scotland Yard Consults Peter Hurkos', well-known clairvoyant, for help in finding the Coronation Stone. Scottish Sunday Express spreads the story over entire front page.

"If I had onewish to make for 1951, it would be that some spaceship would land in every major capital of the world .. of a design unknown to man, fueled by an undiscovered fuel, composed of strange metals... with little bright green men about two feet high ... I'm sure all human beings would have the hell scared out of them...mankind is ripe for a big scare..." (Columnist Robt. C. Ruark, Washington) Patience, brother, patience!

Goblin Market (B):

'Some scientist down in Washington gives out that the so-called saucers are nothing but thin balloons . . . What puts the Air Force in a wretched position is, that, all along it has disclaimed knowledge of anything even resembling the saucers. That meant that it had no knowledge even of the round balloons - and most plainly it must have had such knowledge. If it did not it was woefully ignorant indeed. I'm no scientist, but a scientist at MIT in Massachusetts didn't keep a clamp on his mouth very long after the balloon 'explanation'. What he said in effect was: "Sorry, kids, that ain't the answer." MIT is a top-drawer science school; its professors are not given to spraying up the air with nonsense....'

(Columnist Whitney Bolton. Buf.Eve.News)

"Millions in Fear as Quake Rocks Europe - giant blast of wind follows tremor. . . Gales and heavy rains combined to give Europe one of her wildest 24 hours of the winter". (AP Lon.) Up to date, the possibility of an atomic blast seems to be ruled out by most scientists. (The M.P. seance Controls have predicted a series of similar happenings for the European continent and British Isles).

25 Earth Tremors recorded in Calif., preceded by loud roaring sound. (Dec. 1950). . . Huron, S.D. reported a myserious lighted object hovering or zooming; colors changing from red to white to green.

The distinguished essayist Gerald Heard has produced a one-man spate of shoddy journalism on the flying disc subject - many articles and a book which will soon appear here. He says, the FREEMASONS are back of it all. "United Grand Lodge of England has no comment" - which is quite understandable. Admirers of G.H. - and they have been many, including the RR editor - are feeling slightly nauseated.

First tornado ever recorded in Calif. San Jose area, Jan.13, '51.

Mt. Lamington, New Guinea, supposedly extinct volcano, was partially "blasted into dust by atom-bomb-like explosions, taking some 4000 lives. The entire northern face of the mountain was blown away."

Veteran pilot encounters a "strange plane" over Sioux City, Ia. His own plane was making 120 mph and the other was "going faster than that in the opposite direction. "I just turned my head and there he was again, 200 ft. away and going in the same direction we were." No AF jets scheduled for that area. This almost instant reversal of direction, in fast flight, cannot be accomplished by any plane now in use.

Something 'long and slim like a telephone pole, or like a ball bat - maybe 300 feet long' over Galena, Ill. (Reports via chief operator at State police radio tower, Maquota, Ia.). It looked like a ball bat and was brilliantly lighted (from Clarence, Ohio)

'Mystery plane half-again as large as a B-29 over Sioux City, no engine nacelles or pods or other visible means of propulsion. "If the cigar-shaped intruder contained within its shell" (writes Assoc.Don Green) all the gas that has been wasted in denying its existence, nobody would have to speculate on what keeps it afloat."

Goblin Market (C)

Swiss Professor sees Flying Saucer: Professor A.M. Lombard of the University of Neuchatel describes it in detail. It was blinding white, left a trail of white smoke, 'shot across the sky', hung im - mobile for several minutes, turned sideways and rose straight up leaving no smoke trail - all of which seems to prove it was a plastic balloon!!!

Reuters listening station in London reports 'the worst three months in radio history - meaning freak results, erratic reception, constant interference from 'unknown causes'.

German 'most remarkable woman seer', Mrs. Ursula Kardos, does not expect war this year, but says it will bring the worst natural catastrophes in living memory. "Water, heaven, and earth will be in upheaval. Something will drop from heaven." Mrs Kardos has a Berlin magistrate's license and cooperate with the police in murder cases.

"My statesmanship is still all in China, where the last struggle for power is bound to come. China is bound to go to pieces, and if Russia organizes it as an economical power the little drama of history will end in the overthrow of our clumsy Western civilization. We can never compete with Asia. . . In that event I allow until 1950 to run our race out." Henry Adams, letter to Elizabeth Cameron, March 22, 1903.

A "thing" shaped like a disc zoomed over a Lakeside (Calif.) ranch, "only 50 feet off the ground, travelling faster than a jet plane. It was 'aluminum colored, squealed as it flew and left behind a strange odor.' That's according to rancher W.C. Kline, who also squealed (to the newspapers) because it scared the living cackles out of his chickens. If he had known it was a plastic balloon all would have been well.

A 'buzzing fireball' buzzed over Costa Mesa, Calif. Observer Mrs Coffey said it 'shook her house but wasn't an airplane' (Jan. 28, '51). Might have been the same as the squealing thing mentioned above.

Two persons reported attacked by "radiation sickness and temporary blindness", near Sacramento, Calif., after being caught in a rain, and shortly after the five atomic explosions near Las Vegas, 300 miles away. Hospital physicians gave the diagnosis as radiation sickness - according to the Santa Ana Register of March 3, '51. But on March 4 the same paper published a report by army information officer John B. Rose, that the trouble was caused by poison oak (poison ivy). BSR Assoc. Don Green comments: 'the poison of these plants is non-volatile and the effects come from direct contact, Inoculation from a rainstorm is a new slant.' -- For some five years now, 'Official sources', the A.F. in particular, have systematically discredited themselves by ridiculous explanations, shifts, clumsy denials and endless stupidities.

We could run this Goblin Market section to 20 pages as easily as to these three - but these are merely 'for your information' that all is NOT quiet, nor simple, smooth and understandable behind the silken curtains of official smugness.

INVALUABLE PUBLICATIONS - for all Associates and everyone who ought to be an Associate: First: the HUNA Bulletins issued by Max Freedom Long. In fact, all of the Huna literature, books and studies. Huna Research and BSR have always cooperated closely, and we hope for and anticipate still closer relationships. (Address Assoc. AFL, who is also Co-Director of BSRA, at Box 2867, Holwd. Sta. Los Angeles 28, Calif.). -- Next, The VOICE FROM THE GALLERY, Editor Ralph M. Holland, 2520 - 4th St. Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio. Brilliantly handled and without prejudice or propaganda - and Editor RMH is one of the most active and helpful of BSR Associates. (Send a dollar or two and inquire about subscription rates). -- Remember that PROJECT SURVIVAL & SERVICE, a BSR Project, is handled by BSR Regional Director DON YORK, Box 151, Kansas City 8, Mo. PROJECT COMMUNICATIONS, cooperating with Project Survival, is handled by Reg. Dir. S.N. GREEN, Box 127, Bayfield, Colo. These are non-profit public service activities, but much time and work is being invested in them, along with operating expenses - so at least send stamps.

WE RECOMMEND the publication of the HOLLOWAY SCHOOL OF PHILOSOPHY, entitled FLYING SAUCERS; published at 1123 North Ardmore Ave, Los Angeles 29, Calif. Vol. III No. 11, Feb. 1951. Six large-size pages summarizing the present status of the "Saucer" mystery, giving very fair treatment to the explanation long offered by the BSRA under the instruction of the Mark Probert Controls. Dr. Holloway is one of the few students of this subject who has grasped the science and metaphysics lying back of the etheric hypothesis (which is much more than a hypothesis, to our minds), and (equally rare) does not hesitate to give it tentative yet real support. Send some small voluntary contribution/the School, and if you like the number referred to, get several copies and pass them around. It will help the lonely and somewhat despised efforts of the BSRA, to make the etheric explanation intelligible. "WELCOME, ETHERIANS" is Dr. Holloway's final word.

A "BEGINNER'S LIST" OF BOOKS IN THE FIELD OF "ILLUMINISM" =
PSYCHISM, SPIRITISM, OCCULTISM, PARAPSYCHOLOGY ETC.

For many people, the best approach to the Illuminist field is thru well-selected reading. The newcomer learns something of the nature and variety of the phenomena and is able to consider them intelligently. He should bear in mind, of course, that a complete bibliography, if one were possible, would run to tens of thousands of titles and date back to the earliest times.

FOR A GENERAL APPROACH, background & comprehensive view of spiritism, spiritualism, psychism: (1) The Encyclopaedia of Psychic Science, by Nandor Fodor, LL.D. 415 pp. Arthurs Press, 34 Bloomsbury St., London, W.C.1. Out of print, but inquire of Dr. Nandor Fodor, Park Central Hotel, N.Y.19. Price is $8.00 to $10.00. Admirable factual conspectus of the whole field. (2): The Story of Psychic Science, by Hereward Carrington.

On the nature of death and the after-life: The After-Death Life, by Lieut. Col. A.E. Powell. 91 pp. (Theosophical resume') (2): Clairvoyant Research and the Life After Death, by Geoffrey Hodgson (clairvoyant); (3): Life After Death, by C.W. Leadbeater, and (4) The Astral Plane (same author. (5): Open the Door, by Wilfred Brandon (transcribed by Edith Ellis.

Materialization Phenomena: The "classic" on this is The Phenomena of Materialization, by Baron Von Schrenck-Notzing; ca. 340 pp. intensive laboratory studies, many photographs and drawings. (2) From the Unconscious to the Conscious, Dr. Gustave Geley (biologist). Psycho-biological study with photographs of ectoplasmic forms. (3) On the Edge of the Etheric, by J. Arthur Findlay (and other books by same author). Easier reading than (1) and (2) above, and a good 'first book' in spiritualism.

Spiritualism: Consult the "Researches" of Sir William Crookes, the works of W.J. Crawford, E. Gurney, F.W.H. Myers, Frank Podmore; Survival of Man, by Sir Oliver Lodge (and his other books); The New Revolution, by Sir Conan Doyle (and others by him). Works of J. Arthur Hill. The Higher Spiritualism, by John C. Leonard. History of Spiritualism, by Doyle.

Theosophy: The short works by Powell and Leadbeater mentioned above. Also by Powell: The Etheric Double; The Astral Body; The Mental Body; The Causal Body and the Ego.

Modern Esoteric Qabalism & Rosicrucianism: The Mystical Qabalah, by Dion Fortune. Works of Israel Regardie.

Works of Stewart Edward White. The Cosmic Doctrine, by Dion Fortune.

Lists of occult books of all kinds may be had from dealers (e.g., The Book Exchange, 2643 No. 33rd St. Philadelphia 32, Penna. The Theosophical Press, Wheaton, Ill. Rider & Co. London, 68 Fleet St. E.C. 4). Most dealers will accept standing orders for out-of-print books.

The BSRA are not book dealers and sell only for purposes of clearing shelves. Please do not ask our HQRS to order for you.

- I L L U M I N I S M -

- I. Mysticism = a) Religion b) Pantheism
Religion - Service, and Adoration
Pantheism - Power, and Beauty

II. Occultism

1. Cosmology - Cosmos, and Universe
Universe - Classification, and Evolution
2. Correspondence
3. Magic - White, and Black
White Magic - Contacts, seership, trance, Words of Power, ceremonial.
Contacts - with Masters, Devas, spirits of "dead"

Ceremonial - mantrams, ritual, talismans.
Black magic includes: a) drugs b) sex magic c) blood sacrifices d) Pacts.
4. Esoteric psychology
5. Initiation - a) dedication b) purification c) discipline
d) instruction e) service.

SPIRITISM belongs under Magic. SPIRITUALISM is spiritism as a religion, or under the religious aspect. It is White Magic and includes:

- a) Contacts - chiefly with spirits of the "dead."
- b) Certain forms of seership
- c) The phenomena of trance
- c) Some use of Words of Power and ceremonial (religious)

The phenomena of spiritualism and spiritism are very extensive, and are variously classified. They include:

Mental aspects: clairaudience, clairvoyance, telepathy, clairsentience, trance (conscious and unconscious), projection, xenoglossy, psychometry, prediction, "messages" and "inspiration."

Physical aspects: Trumpet voice (direct voice), independent voice, levitation, apports, etherialization, materialization, transfiguration, healing, direct writing, controlled writing (automatic), telekinesis, sounds, lights, spirit photography, etc.

Tarot and Geomancy belong to occult Divination. Meditation is practised in all occult or Illuminist Orders. The Otz Chiim is the Tree of Life, a Qabalistic Glyph (symbol system.)

Illuminism is a term in many ways preferable to occultism, as being inclusive of the whole field, and free from undesirable connotations. Parapsychological studies are sometimes included under Illuminism.
